The Kites

Named after one of Oxford's most common avine spectacles, this indie pop quintet come proffering airy melodies, well-bred songs and subtle, enticing vocals. Perfect light fare for the depths of summer.

Asterox

Kennington-based duo who build classic rock edifices from guitar, harmonica, woodwind and twin vocals. They believe in the value of a kicking riff and a quality melody, and are sure to supply a tight set of uplifting well-turned tunes.

These Are Our Demands

More references back to great GTI acts of yore, TAOD were put together by  $\frac{3}{4}$  of the mighty Harry Angel, to continue the dark sermonising. Perhaps a little lighter and more introspective than the parent band, we still expect this trio to probe some eerie Nick Cave corners and start the night with a gothic shiver.
