Pastel Frontier

Alt-rock group Pastel Frontier are an intense, decibel crunching-riffsmith unit from Oxford, who gained traction on the town's stages whilst studying at Brookes University. Having been given BBC Introducing's Band of the Month title the band have gone from strength to strength, self-releasing their debut self-titled EP.

Shrinking Violets

Idealised beyond eccentricity: "Shrinking Violets" are the five-piece result of an experiment to blend rock and roll with soul and psychedelic pop, blossoming from the soil of their hometown, Redditch, in October 2015. With tones as bright as their colours, and a nonchalant poetical agenda, Shrinking Violets brings the essence of nature via the truth of electronics to an unsustainable state of beautiful chaos.

Amoral Compass

Amoral Compass are a drum machine driven punk/grunge combo learning their trade around Oxford. Often described as Oxford's finest post-goth-industrial-no wave-punk duo, although they would probably describe themselves as a *shrug* punk rock thing.
