Slate Hearts

A fresh new alt rock trio, Slate Hearts were recently seen supporting GTI faves Too Many Poets for their record launch. Nightshift said their “form of grunge proves a pleasantly dark surprise. From a playful cover of ‘Girls Just Wanna Have Fun’ to the aggressive, Fugazi-esque ‘Presley’, they exhibit a showing which [...] is full of character”.

Dead Pheasants

Chippenham’s Dead Pheasant are a grassroots, politically charged punk-rock/ska-folk cocktail, delivering a unique and unpredictable sound with an exciting and energetic live performance. A breath of fresh air spiced with aromatic fiddle licks! Plus, they have members called Pug and Miggles, and this sort of thing is the mark of any left-leaning party band worth its salt!

Roberto Y Juan

Roberto Y Juan are a spin-off from the fantastic Balloon Ascents. The soundscape consists of two voices, bass and an electric guitar, and they play rhythmic original songs that have a strong folk-pop-fusion feel. Lyrical guitar work, interesting cross rhythms and reflective lyrics. Influences from Rodrigo Y Gabriela, Bert Jansch/Pentangle, Mark Knopfler, John Martyn and Neil Young.
