Holy Moments

Punky, grunge-spattered pop from a newish local trio. In 2016 they played with Lucy Leave, Cherokii and Slate Hearts, which should be all the evidence you require that they are great fun. If you're less trusting then check out "Bug In The Brain".

Le Pub

No Negotiation. No Nonsense. No Compromise. Just music, served well with a side of beer/wine and pork scratchings. A big, bouncy quintet from the west of the county, for people who know that rock bands, like pubs, should be wholesome, unpretentious and full of booze.

Freddy Le Cragg

Banbury's Freddy Le Cragg started with a cheap guitar, went electric, joined a band, switched to bass, wrote some epic songs and now has come full circle to a cheap guitar again. Blues, ballads, rock 'n' roll, all mixed in a big blender and spat out through a microphone.
