Grub

Grub are “a band whose big, fat mess of superfuzzed riffage reflects their name. Their wah-wah-heavy garage grunge is raw and untamed, like a churning storm of Stooges and MC5 noise sporadically bundled out of its heads-down stoner haze by some Mudhoney-like rage. It’s simple and straight-down-the-line but seriously bloody great” Nightshift

Downard

Punishing distorto-riffs + math-slam drums + swirly voice confusion = Bristol duo Downard. Katie plays a high-tuned short-scale bass through guitar and bass amplifiers and various effects pedals. Andy plays the drums and sings through guitar effects pedals. Be honest, you want to see that, don’t you?

Old Ernie

Old Ernie deal in grunge, punk, experimental sludge, and filth. They feature David Kahl and Gemma Moss from excellent twisted avant-cabaret duo Brown Glove, along with a man bashing away at the drums. The musical equivalent of crippling coulrophobia.
