The Easter Island Statues

Strong melodies, pounding drums, percussive rhythm guitar and an underlying, snarling great Dane of a bass come together to form The Easter Island Statues. Nice, chunky folk-influenced indie pop to sing along to as if it's the sweetest cider-sprayed sundown in balmy festival history. Recurrent lyrical themes are the weather, the ocean and ritual funerary incineration.

The Other Ones

Classic pop from London, full of sweet melodies and tasty harmonies, glowing and grinning after a downpour of purest FUZZ. A great band for those who are missing Oxford's Swiss Concrete promotions and their indie jamborees.

Breezewax

Breezewax is the moniker of trip hop musician/producer Ashley Thorpe. With multi-genre influences, he typically uses a mix of sampling, live instruments and electronic soundscapes to create chill, beat-driven music. His debut album Vagabond was officially re-released by INFAS Music in 2011. His follow up Native Sun was released on Cult Classic Records, and there's plenty more online, including Press Play, a proper love letter to the old school mix tape.
