Little Brother Eli

One of Oxford's best live bands, who don't perform that often, celebrating the release of their new single "Tooth". You can see why we're chuffed. The song beats a path away from the funky rocking we know so well from LBE, and towards a sleeker, discofied incarnation, but they're guaranteed to still ignite a venue in any form. "Packs enough of a punch to suggest they're a band with a foot in music's past, but eyes on a bigger, brighter future" - Nightshift.

Quartermelon

A tropical trio from the west side of the Oxfordshire, singing songs about fornicating, dozing off and sailing. "It's always good to see a new band in town that defy almost all critical attempts to pin them down. Quartermelon's singer's falsetto heads all over the shop and comes with plenty of lyrical dexterity, while the band aren't afraid to take their shoegazy spangle into soul and funk." - Nightshift

Lucy Vee

Lucy is best known as the sultry vocalist from Oxford hip hop stars Death Of Hi Fi, and has recently started playing under her own name, with able keyboard support from Colin Henney. Expect some fat, groovy electro topped off with soulful, slinky torch song vocal lines.
