Daisy

Oxford's act most able to balance dark, emo soul scouring with ear-tickling tunes, Daisy has recently had a line-up change, and is now a better proposition than ever. As well as boasting Ali Stores from GTI alumni Holy Moments, their sound now takes in math rock curlicues and enticing textures to decorate the Velcro-catchy songs. New EP Talk About It has just been released, grab one while you can.

Fancy Dress Party

A band featuring ex-members of old GTI favourites Too Many Poets and Slate Hearts has got to be worth a look, and doubly so when it turns out they make glorious, golden melancholic alt rock (or as they would have it, sulkwave). Being unhappy has rarely sounded so pleasing.

Pet Sematary

Pet Sematary is the new solo project from Gaby-Elise, from Le Feye/Coldredlight. Expect chilling glacial blues and a strong yet beguilingly sweet voice that could turn an orc into a Buddhist at forty paces. The maudlin ghosts of Jeff Buckley, Howlin' Wolf and Hope Sandoval will be raised, as will some sad glasses of strong liquor as the beautiful paeans fill the evening air. (Yes, we know Hope Sandoval isn't dead, please don't spoil our purple prose).
