

Cedars of Lebanon

Almagrey

Laima

Saturday 30th Jul '22

The Port Mahon, St Clements, Oxford

Entry £5.00 (cash only) Door 7.30pm

£4.00 in advance from <https://www.wegotickets.com/gappytooth>

www.gappytooth.com

Cedars of Lebanon

Almagrey

Laima

Saturday 30th Jul '22

The Port Mahon, St Clements, Oxford

Entry £5.00 (cash only) Door 7.30pm

£4.00 in advance from <https://www.wegotickets.com/gappytooth>

www.gappytooth.com

Cedars of Lebanon

Almagrey

Laima

Saturday 30th Jul '22

The Port Mahon, St Clements, Oxford

Entry £5.00 (cash only) Door 7.30pm

£4.00 in advance from <https://www.wegotickets.com/gappytooth>

www.gappytooth.com

Cedars of Lebanon

Almagrey

Laima

Saturday 30th Jul '22

The Port Mahon, St Clements, Oxford

Entry £5.00 (cash only) Door 7.30pm

£4.00 in advance from <https://www.wegotickets.com/gappytooth>

www.gappytooth.com

Cedars of Lebanon

This new band doesn't have a web presence. Are they cutting edge and underground, or just lazy? Well, either way, we can tell you that we have witnessed them performing, and they deliver a strange yet intoxicating mixture of classic rock and psychedelic indie: imagine Ride in their pomp covering Free and you'd be...well, not that close at all, really, but sometimes comparisons don't quite work. If we tell you that the band features Gappy alumnus Brendan Morgan, who makes techno in Mothdrop and plays filthy bass for grunge monkeys Grub, and you imagine them mixed together...well, you'd be further way than last time, frankly. It's all part of life's rich pageant.

Almagrey

Bristol act Almagrey's style can be defined as a mix of shoegaze, rock and dream pop, mainly characterised by screaming guitars, melodic vocals, wild drums, groovy bass lines and introspective lyrics. They're known for supercharged live performances displaying a penchant for hooky power pop riffs maximised by the sheer sonic force of dizzying guitar noise. Their drummer made a lot of friends when performing with Noisssiennes at Gappy's first post-COVID event, so we expect this set to repeat the experience.

www.soundcloud.com/almagrey

Laima

The smokily-voiced Laima will need no introduction to anyone who has sampled the Oxford music scene in the past 15 years, she's quite simply one of the best vocalists in the county, and we were surprised to see we'd never had her perform solo for us (though there was a gig for her blustery goth band Mary's Garden back in the Zodiac days). We're ecstatic to rectify that oversight now. If we tell you that Nightshift magazine, on receiving Laima's first ever demo, suspected that it was a trick and they'd been sent something by a famous singer, you'll get the idea that you need this sound in your life.

www.facebook.com/LaimaBiteMusic/

Cedars of Lebanon

This new band doesn't have a web presence. Are they cutting edge and underground, or just lazy? Well, either way, we can tell you that we have witnessed them performing, and they deliver a strange yet intoxicating mixture of classic rock and psychedelic indie: imagine Ride in their pomp covering Free and you'd be...well, not that close at all, really, but sometimes comparisons don't quite work. If we tell you that the band features Gappy alumnus Brendan Morgan, who makes techno in Mothdrop and plays filthy bass for grunge monkeys Grub, and you imagine them mixed together...well, you'd be further way than last time, frankly. It's all part of life's rich pageant.

Almagrey

Bristol act Almagrey's style can be defined as a mix of shoegaze, rock and dream pop, mainly characterised by screaming guitars, melodic vocals, wild drums, groovy bass lines and introspective lyrics. They're known for supercharged live performances displaying a penchant for hooky power pop riffs maximised by the sheer sonic force of dizzying guitar noise. Their drummer made a lot of friends when performing with Noisssiennes at Gappy's first post-COVID event, so we expect this set to repeat the experience.

www.soundcloud.com/almagrey

Laima

The smokily-voiced Laima will need no introduction to anyone who has sampled the Oxford music scene in the past 15 years, she's quite simply one of the best vocalists in the county, and we were surprised to see we'd never had her perform solo for us (though there was a gig for her blustery goth band Mary's Garden back in the Zodiac days). We're ecstatic to rectify that oversight now. If we tell you that Nightshift magazine, on receiving Laima's first ever demo, suspected that it was a trick and they'd been sent something by a famous singer, you'll get the idea that you need this sound in your life.

www.facebook.com/LaimaBiteMusic/

Cedars of Lebanon

This new band doesn't have a web presence. Are they cutting edge and underground, or just lazy? Well, either way, we can tell you that we have witnessed them performing, and they deliver a strange yet intoxicating mixture of classic rock and psychedelic indie: imagine Ride in their pomp covering Free and you'd be...well, not that close at all, really, but sometimes comparisons don't quite work. If we tell you that the band features Gappy alumnus Brendan Morgan, who makes techno in Mothdrop and plays filthy bass for grunge monkeys Grub, and you imagine them mixed together...well, you'd be further way than last time, frankly. It's all part of life's rich pageant.

Almagrey

Bristol act Almagrey's style can be defined as a mix of shoegaze, rock and dream pop, mainly characterised by screaming guitars, melodic vocals, wild drums, groovy bass lines and introspective lyrics. They're known for supercharged live performances displaying a penchant for hooky power pop riffs maximised by the sheer sonic force of dizzying guitar noise. Their drummer made a lot of friends when performing with Noisssiennes at Gappy's first post-COVID event, so we expect this set to repeat the experience.

www.soundcloud.com/almagrey

Laima

The smokily-voiced Laima will need no introduction to anyone who has sampled the Oxford music scene in the past 15 years, she's quite simply one of the best vocalists in the county, and we were surprised to see we'd never had her perform solo for us (though there was a gig for her blustery goth band Mary's Garden back in the Zodiac days). We're ecstatic to rectify that oversight now. If we tell you that Nightshift magazine, on receiving Laima's first ever demo, suspected that it was a trick and they'd been sent something by a famous singer, you'll get the idea that you need this sound in your life.

www.facebook.com/LaimaBiteMusic/

Cedars of Lebanon

This new band doesn't have a web presence. Are they cutting edge and underground, or just lazy? Well, either way, we can tell you that we have witnessed them performing, and they deliver a strange yet intoxicating mixture of classic rock and psychedelic indie: imagine Ride in their pomp covering Free and you'd be...well, not that close at all, really, but sometimes comparisons don't quite work. If we tell you that the band features Gappy alumnus Brendan Morgan, who makes techno in Mothdrop and plays filthy bass for grunge monkeys Grub, and you imagine them mixed together...well, you'd be further way than last time, frankly. It's all part of life's rich pageant.

Almagrey

Bristol act Almagrey's style can be defined as a mix of shoegaze, rock and dream pop, mainly characterised by screaming guitars, melodic vocals, wild drums, groovy bass lines and introspective lyrics. They're known for supercharged live performances displaying a penchant for hooky power pop riffs maximised by the sheer sonic force of dizzying guitar noise. Their drummer made a lot of friends when performing with Noisssiennes at Gappy's first post-COVID event, so we expect this set to repeat the experience.

www.soundcloud.com/almagrey

Laima

The smokily-voiced Laima will need no introduction to anyone who has sampled the Oxford music scene in the past 15 years, she's quite simply one of the best vocalists in the county, and we were surprised to see we'd never had her perform solo for us (though there was a gig for her blustery goth band Mary's Garden back in the Zodiac days). We're ecstatic to rectify that oversight now. If we tell you that Nightshift magazine, on receiving Laima's first ever demo, suspected that it was a trick and they'd been sent something by a famous singer, you'll get the idea that you need this sound in your life.

www.facebook.com/LaimaBiteMusic/