In-Flight Movie

In-Flight movie is a synth punk band which combine frenzied drums, old school synths and driving guitar alongside dynamic vocals. Their live show takes audiences on a dark and nostalgic tour through a soundscape influenced by bands like Joy Division, New Order, Gary Numan, Black Marble, LCD Soundsystem and film soundtracks such as Blade Runner and Stranger Things.

The Nature Centre

Birmingham's The Nature Centre craft three-minute pop songs, stuffed to bursting with ideas like a holiday suitcase packed last-minute by an eccentric record collector. The band plays like nobody is watching, quoting freely from flowery psych, faded art rock cassettes, scratchy punk and weird pop. The results are playful, deceptively sweet, and profoundly Brummie, and have elicited comparisons to XTC, Cardiacs, Cate le Bon and Field Music. Their debut album, Never Not, was released in October 2019. Prog magazine called it "a miniature avant-pop masterpiece".

BLC Mirror CLB

No, not Charlie Brooker's fan network, but a dark-hearted rock outfit from Nice, France, who are swinging by on a tour of the UK. Some of you may remember Fabz from his band Ya OK Yeah who played GTI back in the Sheaf days – if so, his new band is similar but more malevolent and twisted. We're told by Google that the French for "muscular goth indie" is "indie gothique musclé"...to be honest, we probably could have guessed that.
