Santa Carla

Santa Carla are a band named after the town in brat-pack teen vampire classic The Lost Boys. Santa Carla are a band featuring the peerless goth-pop vocals of Laima Bite, with some of the musical nouse of local legend Martin Newton. Put these facts together and what you'll find is that they're essentially long-standing dark-groove Oxford favourites Mary's Garden with a slight smirk and a wink in the eye. Expect huge songs, vast 80s synths, and those rich smoky Laima vocals we love so much.

The Borough

The Borough will be bringing their uptight post-punk funk sounds from Reading for this gig, and garnishing it with just a little surf-rock pizzazz. They deal in chilly grooves, sat somewhere in the space between Gang Of 4, New Order, and 23 Skidoo, and they also run the excellently named Berkshire promotion, Please Ban Music.

Mediochre

Mediochre – or Antonia as she is known most of the time – has been lighting up Oxford's open mics for a while. Her voice has a sweetness and clarity that draws you in, but the songs are anything but simple, with gnarly twists and turns and a woozy dream-like quality that sucks all your pain away and leaves you grinning like a fool.
